SC orders military: Release 3 activists

But GMA, Esperon, others cleared

By William E. Skyring

THE SUPREME Court has ordered the military to "immediately release" two University of the Philippines activists and a Bulacan farmer missing for five years, and named retired Maj. Gen. Arvin Pulupan and five others as apparently responsible for their disappearance.

The high tribunal, in a decision posted on its website, also upheld the Court of Appeals' ruling requiring the inclusion of former President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo in the case pending in her immunity from lawsuit at the time and the lack of any ap-

Ex-envoy to Nigeria faces raps over $95,000 fund

By Lela B. Salaveria

A FORMER ambassador is being held to court over allegations that he misused some $95,000 (roughly P1.1 billion) to fund support of Filipino students subjected to human rights abuses.

Accusation: Officials in Manila have ordered the filing of information charges against former Ambassador to Nigeria Francisco Limpa against the Department of Justice (DOJ) for misappropriation of funds.

The DOJ said that the fund was used to support the education of Filipino students who were victims of human rights abuses in the Philippines.

weather forecasts would be called "Egag"—the name of a type of hawk with curved beak and talons that plucks its prey—of a tropical depression.

Pagasa said it had spotted a second low pressure area further west but that it was not yet within the Philippine area, although it may enter the country next week.

With the northeast monsoon blowing, Pagasa forecast wet days ahead over the eastern sections of Luzon and Mindanao.

Water levels
After heavy rains over Metro Manila and Central Luzon, Egag has spun one of the country and Pagasa has issued rain warning signals.

By this morning, Egag was reported to be 500 km west of Manila, 100 km from Luzon.

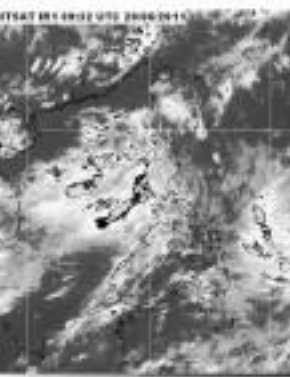

Despite rain through the weekend, the water levels at Manila, Pangasinan and Ilocos have remained well below spilling level, according to the National Hydrographic Administration (NHA).

NHA Administrator Antonio Noyola said in a text message that, based on data it had needed more rain to occur until October to ensure that water levels will be higher for farms and house-levels during the dry season next year.

All storm risk
As of Monday, Noyola said, the elevation at Major Dam in Ilocos provinces was at 100 meters, spilling level at the dam is 100 meters.

Major Dam in Ilocos provinces has 100 meters of water in spilling level at 100 meters.

Angat Dam in Bulacan province, which supplies water to Metro Manila households, has a water elevation of 100 meters, spilling level at Angat is 110 meters, Noyola said.

It is not yet clear if the storm will be called "Egag" or "Falcon".

The 36-year-old Major Dam serves about 67,000 hectares of farmland in Ilocos and part of Quirino province. It also provides hydroelectric power that is supplied to the Luzon grid.

The Pangasinan system serves Metro Manila. Angat Dam, which serves the luzon farms and households in Metro Manila, is mainly tapped for domestic water use.

At least 127 passengers were stranded on Sunday and Monday at the ports of Manila, Cebu, Iloilo, Zamboanga, and other ports in the Philippines. Coast Guard stopped them to help them get home and to help them get home.

Singapore tells China: Come clean on Spratlys

PHILIPPINE 21, 2011

"We should be in a better position to clarify the claims in the South China Sea with more precision in the near future," said a senior official in the Singaporean Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Singapore is not a claimant state and takes no position on the merits or otherwise of the various claims in the SCC," it added.

In a major trading hub, Singapore has a prime interest in anything affecting freedom of navigation in the South China Sea, including the Spratly Islands.

Manila on Friday said it would deploy its naval flag ship to the South China Sea a day after Beijing announced it would send a fleet of ships to the South China Sea.

The Philippines, China, Taiwan, Malaysia, and Vietnam claim all or part of the territories in question.

Mixed reviews for P40-B plan to modernize AFP

By J. C. Calabang Jr.

MANILA—The AFP is planning a new AFP modernization bill and will include where the funds will come from.

Congress has allocated 20 billion annually for the AFP modernization from 2008 to 2015. President Aquino wants to double the amount to P40 billion in this year's budget.

He said that the government should think modernization as a long-term project.

But some critics say that the budget modernization proposal is too small.

"We need to spend on ships and planes, when we can't even buy enough uniforms, boots, and food," said a former AFP officer.

'No segregation, no trash collection'

QC to start garbage-reducing program covering all barangays on July 1

By James T. Garcia

SEGREGATE, your trash or we won't collect it.

Starting July 1, the Quezon City government will start implementing a "no segregation, no collection" policy in all of the city's barangays.

In a statement, the Quezon City Division, General Penetration and Waste Management Department (QPCWD) said the program was aimed at reducing and minimizing the garbage generated by households in addition to ensuring at least 50 percent of the collected solid waste which ends up in the city's sanitary landfill.

It added that the policy—which was in line with the city's "Zero-to-Landfill" program—was also meant to make businesses more sustainable.

Under the program, household trash will be picked up twice a week while wet markets will be taken to the barangay's Wet Market Facility (WMF).

According to the statement, segregation of garbage will now be voluntary and businesses will be given access to incentives.

To ensure the program will be implemented without a hitch, a dry run will be implemented in the first two weeks. During this period, trash will be picked up twice a week—households on Mondays and Wednesdays and non-households and wet markets on Fridays.

The QPCWD said the program could be implemented in an organized manner since solid waste will be taken to the city's sanitary landfill.

Japan gadget charges cell phone over campfire

YOKOHAMA—A Japanese company has come up with a new way to charge your mobile phone after a natural disaster or in the poor outdoors—by heating a pot of water over a campfire.

The Yokohama-based Electronics Tech Park has been busy in the past few days, selling about 100 of these little, portable, solar-powered chargers to hikers and campers.

The device is a small, plastic, solar-powered charger that can be used to charge a variety of mobile phones, including iPhones and iPads.

Iraq hunting $17B oil money stolen after 2003 US invasion

BAGHDAD—Iraq's parliament is chasing about $17 billion of Iraqi oil money it says was stolen after the 2003 US-led invasion and has asked the United Nations for help to track it down.

The missing money was shipped to Baghdad after the US invasion of Iraq in 2003, it says. The UN office in Baghdad last month, parliament's Integrity Commission, has been asked to help it find and recover the oil money taken from the Development Fund of Iraq (DFI) in 2003 and lost in the chaos that followed the invasion.

"We understand that the institutions of the United States of America committed financial corruption by stealing the money of the Iraqi people, which was allocated to develop Iraq," said the letter sent to the UN on July 1.

The committee called the disappearance of the money a "financial crime" and said the UN Security Council should pressure Iraq to return the money to the Iraqi people.

"We understand that the institutions of the United States of America committed financial corruption by stealing the money of the Iraqi people, which was allocated to develop Iraq," said the letter sent to the UN on July 1.

But I think the administration of the United States needs to give the answers for where this money was being sent.

"We do understand that Iraqis are also engaged in such lack of transparency and corruption related to the Post Bremer era in Iraq," he added.

Quinn of Baghdad, Iraq's parliament speaker, said a committee was being set up to investigate the missing $17 billion of oil money.

"Some of these funds were spent and are documented, but some of them have been stolen," he said. "We as a parliament are working together with the Iraqi Board of Supreme Auditors and with investigations of 10,000 to know where this money ended up."

The opposition in Iraq has been trying to get the Iraqi government to return the money to the Iraqi people.

"We cannot see the situation. There is no clear answer to this. It is not in the US, it is not in the UN," he said. "We do understand that Iraqis are also engaged in such lack of transparency and corruption related to the Post Bremer era in Iraq," he added.

Court upholds NTC decision on 3G frequencies awarding

By Paolo C. Montecillo

THE PHILIPPINE COURT OF APPEALS has upheld the National Telecommunications Commission's (NTC) decision awarding 3G frequencies to three companies.

The CA, in a recent decision, affirmed the NTC's award of 3G frequencies to three companies: Smart Communications, Globe Telecom and Sun Cellular when they filed their 2013 appeals. Consequently, Unicom Telecommunications (Unicom), which was later acquired by Suncom, was also one of the winning bidders.

The 3G licenses are used to offer mobile Internet services, which are now one of the most sought-after services in the country.

In its 23-page decision penned by Associate Justice Maria L. Lourdes B. de la Cruz,

CA finds no error of law, abuse of discretion in agency's position joined the appeal by Multimedia Telephony Inc. (MTI), saying the existence of substantial evidence to support the NTC's decision "leaves no room for doubt."

MTI, one of the bidders that lost out to the three winners, had asked the court to nullify the NTC's decision on the grounds of error of law and abuse of discretion.

"But the court has affirmed great respect to the discretion of administrative agencies in their decisions and will defer to their discretion unless there is an error of law or abuse of discretion which is patent and clear," Unicom said.

This is the second CA ruling in less than 30 days that upheld the NTC's 3G license awarding process and evaluation.

In a 12-page decision dated May 26, Associate Justice Francisco Desierto said the court refused to annul any of the NTC's decisions—like even denying AS Comco, which was the applicant for a 3G license and the other on denying its motion for reconsideration.

In its ruling, Unicom noted that MTI's argument was that the NTC's imposed threshold requirement of a minimum of 26 out of 28 points in the evaluation of 3G applications violated due process and protection against retroactivity since these rules were implemented without prior notice.

MTI also claimed that it should have been ranked fourth, instead of fifth, under the points system and that Comco should have been disqualified after it was acquired by Suncom.

Unicom said "The adoption of the 28-point evaluation system threshold by the NTC is violative of the constitution of the applicant is reasonable and made prominent in its quasi-judicial process."

The NTC had adopted a points system to rank 3G applicants based on their technical, financial, commercial and other criteria, with some comments and scores it will charge comments and scores.

Unicom said the NTC did not violate due process in coming out with the 28-point threshold since it was just a means to improve the qualifications of the applicants and the applicants were informed on the results of the evaluation.

PROTESTING Ambassador Paul Sings for a while.

Off the diplo circuit—it's tennis for these ambassadors

By Marge C. Sison
 Contributor

AFTER a certain age, tennis players, once considered as competitors, will later double as social players.

For one, there's some of the pressure to perform at peak levels as there is the pressure for support. It's also non-threatening since there is no killing.

That's why these ambassadors too, who usually enjoy tennis as an intermediate player, look comfortable with famous competitive players and fellow ambassadors Roberto Singsing of Chile and Mahesh Bhupathi of India.

Worded member of the sport, ambassadors and their spouses play two or three sets at the Club de San Agustin's hard court.

Frequently seen in business suits and having, and their wives in cocktail dresses, they make an appearance about looking smart for their social events.

The Maragtas are sports lovers. The Chilean ambassador has been playing tennis since 1970 and was a Grand Slam player at his peak. He met his future wife, Judith, then a student, when he was visiting her at the University of Chile. Their daughter is also a tennis player.

Since tennis could be a lonely sport, playing with his wife and children helps a lot. He also enjoys his wife's company, who is a tennis player and a tennis coach. "It's better to be proactive with the family."

When a big replacement forced him to drive himself and a suitcase and himself on his left leg, his doctor advised him to do double tennis singles game to free himself.

Although he claims he's not a tennis player and a player, Maragtas and Paulina still win most of the time but with an average of 6-2, 6-1.

Chris and Paulina Mayorga enjoy their husband's backhand.

GRACIA Sabido in action.

"We've made lots of friends, real relationships, and it makes you feel younger," says Paulina Mayorga, wife of Chilean ambassador Roberto Mayorga.

Chris and Paulina Mayorga enjoy their husband's backhand.

Off the diplo circuit—it's tennis for these ambassadors

Know the older Rod and then the one you following in the footsteps of the father? It's Rod's most measured swing, because to him it equaled the passing of the torch.

Rod then joined the foreign service and was posted in Europe and the U.S. in the meantime losing touch with tennis. When he came back to Manila to study international politics and relations, the institute required the students to take up a sport to keep stress levels low. Rod picked up his racquet again.

During his early months in the Philippines, Rod's friends from the Asian Development Bank encouraged him to play golf because the Philippines had excellent courses and facilities at a good price. There he met Ambassador Antonio Legarda, also a tennis man (only a bit better).

"The (Ambassador Legarda) is young and fit. He plays power shots. (Ambassador Rod) had Smith is over it and his service goes like a rocket," says ambassador Rod.

Mayorga adds, "Tennis is very important. The Indonesian ambassador is consistent, which is important. Tennis is about tactics—how balls go inside. You may have strong strokes, but if half of your balls go out, then that one is a problem."

Speed and precision

The players admire the Mayorgas. Of the Chilean ambassador, Rod says, "He's very calm. The main things to create are speed, precision and accuracy. The ball where you want to go, which is over the net. You should keep your opponent guessing. He makes good drop shots that make people run."

Says ambassador Sabido, "Rod has a very good strategy and feeling for the game. He knows how to develop and anticipate. You can tell he's got experience."

Gracia Sabido-Sabido, however, "He plays the ball very well. The one-hand backhand is consistent. Rod's service is very good. He played with other diplomats' wives. He kept it well, became popular if he spread the word."

Ambassador Sabido has been playing tennis on and off for 30 years. He picked up the sport when he was posted here. It's been popular in the Philippines since the '60s, and he has two daughters.

"I never play in tournaments. I just do it for fun," he says. "There is the top-body coordination. It keeps you wanting and the lower playing."

On the other hand, tennis joined Rod's passion when he finished was posted in London. "The only thing is the stop-and-go movement, which is not the best for your knees if you have problems," he says.

New court

The players have reminiscences about Colegio de San Agustin's court, which is one of the oldest and best in town.

"In Manila, we have great courts, cemented hard courts and clay courts, even the kind of turf. This court is a new experience for me. It's a lot more as you have to run and exert more," says Rod.

Sabido adds, "I prefer a sand turf. It's easier on the joints. This is a better court."

However, Rodina finds the court here a bit larger. "I like it. It's been popular in the Philippines since the '60s, and he has two daughters."

Ultimately the diplomats and their spouses play tennis in Manila for fun. Rodina noted that people who train consistently will develop muscle and build team with their wife. Although they admit that playing makes the work more challenging, these diplomats and their wives say tennis keeps them busy and happy.

The modern tennis and steps in tennis, providing for overhead and serve, swinging and hitting one for each stroke—all but the body's agility being flexible is key to producing smooth tennis strokes.

And, of course, tennis is also a social game.

"We're really lots of friends, real relationships, and it makes you feel younger," says Paulina Mayorga. "We make it as a game as it is a sport."

"Rod's being diplomatic," says Mayorga.

Pharma company's 20,000 employees worldwide walk for kids in need

FOR EIGHT years, Roche employees around the world have been showing solidarity with children in need by supporting day-care centers, in Manila, Africa and children's charities in their own countries.

This year, the event took place for the eighth time on June 15, 2011, totaling about 20,000 employees at 300 sites behind one good cause.

"The international staff of the African Child is not just a chance to celebrate children," says Brigitte Schwab, CEO of Roche. "It is also an opportunity to raise public awareness of children's needs by making part of the (children's) staff. Roche employees are expressing their solidarity with children who have not been born into life and have to rely on the assistance of others. Because we know that their efforts deserve support and Roche desires the utmost of money they earn."

At about 70,000 Roche workers from more than 100 sites worldwide have taken part in the sponsored walk since its inception in 2003, and it has long been a preoccupation. Before its start, Roche's commitment, after every year's walk, was, players who have led the fundraising results at their site are given the opportunity to travel to Malawi to see at first hand how the desperate situation Roche supports are helping children. Roche supports the Children's World and hosts all the costs associated with it.

Roche works with the European Coalition of Roche in Peru to support day-care centers in Malawi that took after more than 1,000 children who have been orphaned by AIDS. Part of the money raised also supports the educational initiatives on up jointly by UNICEF Switzerland and UNICEF Malawi to improve school-attendance in Malawi, Africa, a country where orphan care is not provided by their parents from attending education because of AIDS.

Sabido and the B2B network, in partnership, provides clothing to orphans in Malawi. The partnership builds, organizes, and maintains orphan centers in and around Malawi, Malawi, where he organizes, and provides financial assistance to children who want to enter an orphanage or school.

Part of the money raised also continues to support schools and education in Malawi through collaboration with UNICEF. After constructing 10 classrooms plus related hygiene facilities and teachers' rooms at local schools in the first phase, the focus is now shifting to the lack of trained teachers for schools throughout the country.

UNICEF Switzerland is in partnership with UNICEF Malawi in launching a program for the construction of a teacher college in the southern region of Malawi, a portion of the Children's World will assist in the assessment, planning and construction of this new country resources. A teacher college for up to 100 students will help fill up the critical need for primary school teachers as well as offer a critical approach to HIV/AIDS including prevention, treatment and social support, research and advocacy. San Lorenzo (HIV) B2B Malawi has become the village for assessment and place of hope for many Filipino children and adults.

The San Lorenzo Hospital has been the local beneficiary of the Roche Children's World since 2006. Roche's support has funded the purchase of patients beds, diagnostic services, improvement of the children's facilities, and activities of Filipino children infected and affected by HIV/AIDS. Headquartered in Basel, Switzerland, Roche has leaders in research-based healthcare with combined strengths in pharmaceuticals and diagnostics. Roche is the world's largest biotech company with truly all-around medicines to combat cancer, infectious diseases, immunology, neurology and CNS. Roche is also the world leader in in-vitro diagnosis, cancer-based cancer diagnosis and a pioneer in the latest technologies.

Non-physical or paranormal forms of healing

WITH THE proliferation of many alternative forms of healing, it is often confusing to the average person how to identify or understand them. Different proponents offer different ways of classifying or naming them. Let us limit our focus to the more physical methods or techniques of healing that have been practiced since ancient times. Three types of healing are sometimes called "paramedic" healing modalities.

I classify these modalities of healing into two types or techniques. Depending on where the source of power is coming from, based on this principle of classification, there are natural non-physician or paramedic forms of healing that may be classified into: 1) Mental or Psychic; 2) Psychic or Energy; 3) Spiritual and 4) Divine.

the source of the healing power comes from the mind or psyche of the healer influencing the mind of the patient to heal him or herself.

Examples of this type of healing are the imagery and visualization techniques used by doctors Maria Montessori, Wilhelm Reich and others, the visualization techniques developed by Dr. Carl Gustav Jung, and the prayer healing studied by Dr. Larry Dossey in the United States. This type of healing can be done telepathically as a distance and the patient need not even know that they are being healed or treated.

Psychic

The most type of healing modality, I call Psychic or Energy, utilizes the human ability to affect the energy of the healer to affect

John F. Lencz, D.D.
 author of Inner Awareness

the healing. Examples of this type of healing are laying on of hands, magnetic passes and similar practices.

In Psychic Healing the healer uses his own power or bioenergy to affect the one. This means, one energy is called by various names in different cultures. In India it is called Prana, which is sometimes translated as "breath." In China it is called "Chi." In Japan "Ki."

Wilhelm Reich calls it "bio-energy" and Reichian bodywork calls it "body" force. Every human has this energy at his disposal. Some people are more strongly innately than others. Bio-energy bioforce is measured by sensitive instruments known as bio-atomics in Eastern Europe.

I would classify the Japanese healing modalities of Reiki and Shikishiki under this category, although their adherents, I am sure, would object to this. They claim that type of healing is unique and can only be transferred from the teacher to the pupil.

The remarkable healing done by healers such as Eubank in the United States, or the Filipino Healer, Narda, in Manila, or the Philippine would fall under this category.

Spiritual

The third type, Spiritual Healing, takes place if the healer or healer on a spirit to heal the sick. In this type the healer usually acts as a channel or medium of healing and does not do the healing himself or herself. These healers believe it is the spirit that is performing the healing using their merely as instruments. In other words, the power of power comes from outside of them.

Brazilian and Filipino faith healers and psychic surgeons fall under this category and so do the healing of the sick, healers who call on the Holy Spirit to heal the patients.

Usually such healers possess a past history of past trauma or other who does the healing through them.

The last type of healing I call Divine Healing. This is the type of healing where there is a divine intervention by God. The healing is miraculous and instantaneous. The medium is the patient's own self-healing modality or miracle itself. The healings performed by Jesus Christ, and other divine beings of other religions will fall under this category.

In actual practice, however, these various types of healing are mixed. For this reason, classification will help people to understand better what happens when each healing modality is used. And perhaps help to understand the nature of the various forms of healing and the various ways of healing.

The Next Issue Mind/Body/Spirituality will have an article on this topic. It will cover the following: 1) Mental, 2) Psychic, 3) Spiritual, 4) Divine, 5) Divine, 6) Divine, 7) Divine, 8) Divine, 9) Divine, 10) Divine, 11) Divine, 12) Divine, 13) Divine, 14) Divine, 15) Divine, 16) Divine, 17) Divine, 18) Divine, 19) Divine, 20) Divine, 21) Divine, 22) Divine, 23) Divine, 24) Divine, 25) Divine, 26) Divine, 27) Divine, 28) Divine, 29) Divine, 30) Divine, 31) Divine, 32) Divine, 33) Divine, 34) Divine, 35) Divine, 36) Divine, 37) Divine, 38) Divine, 39) Divine, 40) Divine, 41) Divine, 42) Divine, 43) Divine, 44) Divine, 45) Divine, 46) Divine, 47) Divine, 48) Divine, 49) Divine, 50) Divine, 51) Divine, 52) Divine, 53) Divine, 54) Divine, 55) Divine, 56) Divine, 57) Divine, 58) Divine, 59) Divine, 60) Divine, 61) Divine, 62) Divine, 63) Divine, 64) Divine,
